WHERE TO FIND US

Cockermouth is at the intersection of the A66, the main route west from the M6 at Penrith, and the A595 south from Carlisle.

It is well signposted from both main roads.

Castlegate is at the northern end of Main Street, over the River Cocker and just past the Market Place.

SIX CASTLEGATE

GUESTHOUSE

Six Castlegate is an early 18th century Georgian town house. It is a Grade II* listed building of more than special interest and for its first 200 years was home to professional families and their servants. It is now a carefully refurbished guest house offering the best of modern amenities with preserved original features. Castlegate is one of the oldest streets in the attractive market town of Cockermouth, birthplace of William Wordsworth in 1770. We are on the fringe of the Lake District National Park but convenient also for the business centres of the West Coast.

Breakfast is served in our stunning dining room and is freshly prepared using locally sourced ingredients. It can be provided promptly for guests on a tight schedule or can be as leisurely and relaxed as desired.

All guest bedrooms have lovely en-suite facilities, comfy beds, fluffy towels, flat screen televisions and other luxuries, yet each has retained its own individual character.
